FSST Skilled Nursing Facility set to open

The new Flandreau Santee Sioux 'Living Center' is approximately 55,000 sq. ft. with a total of 42 rooms designed to care for those that are aging or in need of assistance and rehabilitation after illness or an injury. Fourteen of the rooms, the south wing, will be dedicated to memory care (Alzheimer's etc.). The project broke Ground on November 4th, 2020 and took nearly two years to complete. Ultimately, even with the challenges of getting materials and COVID restrictions, tribal leaders say that the project came in under budget and ahead of schedule.

Just outside of the main entrance, a Veterans Memorial with a gas fireplace at the center is being constructed. The memorial includes a circle of 5-foot tall walls. Each will include memorial data that includes the names of all of those who have defended the tribe dating as far back as 1892.

While construction has yet to officially wrap up, on the grounds especially at the new Flandreau Santee Sioux Skilled Nursing Facility on the southern edge of town, a Grand Opening celebration for the complex is tentatively being scheduled for mid-October. Tribal leaders, along with the design and construction teams that have been working closely on the project for the past several years, cannot wait for you to see what will soon be available to help care for you and your loved ones.

The approximately $30 million dollar facility offers 42 rooms. Each wing houses a kitchen and living area, a television room and other amenities along with 14 individual rooms — 13 of which are standard, one is a bariatric room with a lift. The facility will be open to both tribal and non-tribal patients for both short and long-term care. The goal is to offer anyone who may need it, a place to recover or live safely with the proper caretaking.

Tribal leaders are especially hopeful that it allows the aging or those with medical needs the ability to remain as close as possible to home and family.

"Culturally, the Tribal community places massive importance on the care and wellbeing of its Elders," David Kills a Hundred, spokesman for the tribe, told the Moody County Enterprise. "There will be no such thing as an unimportant job at the Living Center."

Hiring is ongoing at this time, more than 80 staff are needed with positions ranging from custodial staff to registered nurses. Fourteen of the 42 total rooms are dedicated and built specifically to care for those with memory needs.

Jeff McLaughlin, Construction Superintendent for the lead contractor, Henry Carlson Construction, could not speak more highly of the facility, the teamwork that went into the design, or the process to bring any of it to fruition as he offered a tour recently. Showing the thought that went into each individual wing, staff work space and room, from the materials used to how residents access linens, the shadow boxes outside the door, even the bathroom, "Look, here is your standard bath," he said. "Even these are high-end features," he added, pointing to the tile work in the shower and on the floor. "These are actually about as high end as you can get. Everything you see in this building is just high quality and there is incredible attention to detail."

From the moment you walk in the door, you most likely will notice the incredible attention to detail. From the design, to the color patterns, natural light allowed in and all of the work spaces, everything was done specifically with the patient and caregiver in mind. The Moody County Enterprise will further explore the cultural significance of certain design elements in an upcoming issue — and not just of the indoor spaces. Outdoors, there are extensive walking paths, deliberate gathering spaces and other elements worth exploring.

"It's been a heck of a teamwork concept. They (FSST) had a great design to start with, the design team transferred that onto paper and Henry interpreted that. There's been a lot of... what about this, or what about that? It really is incredible," said McLaughlin.

One of the outdoor elements still very much under construction, but worth mentioning, is a Veterans Memorial. The names of all of those who have defended the tribe dating as far back as 1892 will be memorialized in an impressive feature just outside of the main entrance.

"While the veterans have always held a place of honor within the hearts of the tribal community, the Tribe has never had a proper memorial for its Veterans. All warriors, past and present, took it upon themselves to protect our people. Placing their names on the memorial next to the Care Center, a facility designed to help and house those who may not be able to help themselves, felt like a proper way to honor them," said Kills a Hundred.

New businesses coming

Dirt work has begun on the Flandreau Development Corporation's lot just east of Tractor Supply in Flandreau.

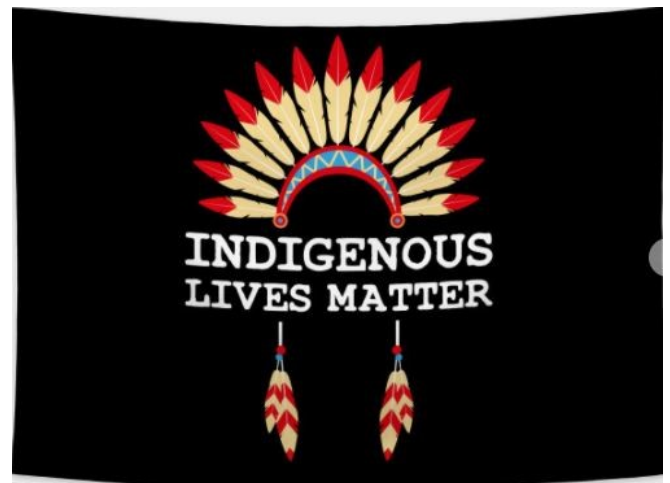

Commercial lots are being developed in both Flandreau and Colman to make way for new businesses.

Along Highway 34 just inside of Colman, the old Quonset hut that has stood for decades on the corner near the city park, is gone. You may have noticed that the building had been for sale for some time. It was recently removed as construction is set to begin on a new official Bank West location. Bank officials made the decision to enter the Colman market earlier this year after another longtime local bank in the downtown area closed its door. Bank West has already open in a temporary space alongside the outer edge of the property.

In Flandreau, Claflin Excavating is moving quickly to get dirt work done on the lot next to Tractor Supply for another national retailer moving to town. The commercial lot along Highway 32 has not previously been developed. While the company has yet to release anything official and local leaders prefer it be the one to release the news, the Moody County Enterprise is told by multiple sources that The Dollar Tree, Inc. group purchased the lot with the intention of opening a new Family Dollar store.

Reider elected to fourth term

FSST Council sworn in

The Flandreau Santee Sioux held its General Election on Saturday, August 5th, Inaugurations followed this past Thursday.

Final results have Tony Reider returning for a 4th term as FSST President. April Herrick was elected Tribal Secretary, and Kristi Bietz (Trustee I) and David Ross (Trustee III) both return for a second term on the Executive Committee. Each position is a four-year term.

At right Ross takes the oath of office for Trustee III.

Crescent Street Bridge teardown began last week

After more than a decade of emotional discussion and indecision surrounding Flandreau's crumbling downtown Crescent Street Bridge, demolition work has finally begun.

"It is long overdue," a group of city and tribal leaders, and a Bureau of Indian Affairs staff member all stated this past week as they were on-site to watch some of the first pieces of decking being removed.

City and tribal leaders in recent years realized that to get anything done with the bridge, a bridge seen by many as a symbol of the division in the community, especially as it cut off a generations-old route to Flandreau Indian School, they had to work together. As recently as this past June, a Memorandum of Understanding was signed by all parties agreeing on the work to be done and how it would happen.

This is the first step, everyone agreed. "This has to happen for us to move forward and bridge that gap between the communities," said Tribal Council member Cyndi Weddell.

City and tribal leaders are asking everyone to remain at a safe distance if they want to observe the work being done. Nearly half of the decking, or the top layer of concrete on the bridge, was removed as of late last week. Rain delayed crews on Friday from getting more done. Beams will be removed next before crews can work their way down to the footings, wrapping up the work they believe, within the next month.

The bridge has been a thoroughfare for all since it was built in 1935, but it was used primarily by FIS staff and students and residents to the north of the river for the greater part of a century. It was an easy and short path to and from downtown, especially for boarding school students who might need supplies or who have fond memories of heading up-town for a movie or a show.

"A lot of the alumni from FIS have reached out to us and Brenda and other alumni," said Tribal Council member Jonathan Schrader, Sr., "So people across Indian Country, they're very excited to see this."

Ten days after the bridge is completely removed, the MOU signed in June clarifies that the city formally grants the tribe an easement to the land, which means it is then theirs to further the work all hope to see done. A full vehicular and pedestrian bridge is the plan, tribal leaders say, if they can acquire funding through the BIA. Other improvements are also being planned. FSST has until 2025 to commence construction or the land and right of way transfer back to the city.

More to come on a possible new bridge as well as the potential for recreational development of the greater area as work progresses.

Tattoo shop now open

Ken “Bones” Rol wraps up work on a customer’s new tattoo this past week at Skin & Bones Tattoo’s new location in downtown Flandreau. The couple has been in business for the past 40 years. While they sketch a lot of other artists’ work, they primarily create their own unique brand of body art.

The last time Skin and Bones Tattoo moved locations, it took about three years for their customer base to find them again. That was 15 years ago.

This go round isn’t taking quite so long. After finally reopening their decades-old business in Flandreau just over a month ago, the duo behind the famed and largely free-style body art is already seeing an uptick in the return of longtime loyal customers.

“We really like Flandreau,” said Ken “Bones” Rol. “It’s quiet, the people are so friendly, nice and helpful, so positive.”

Bones and his wife, Audrey, or “Skin” as many know her, started their tattoo business a little over 40 years ago on the west side of Sioux Falls.

“When we started, the economy was pretty bad,” said Bones. “It was hard to find work and our son was really little, so we just kind of got into this thinking that it would be a way to make some money until I could find a really good job. It just kind of snowballed on us...”

They stayed in their first location almost two decades, Bones said, before bouncing around a bit. They finally settled into a little pink church just east of downtown Sioux Falls, at the intersection of Cliff and 9th Avenues. They’ve stayed there for the past 15 years and might have finished out their careers in that little church. But in that time, the increase in crime and violence in their neighborhood has been unsettling — for their staff, their customers, and themselves. The business had been broken into on several occasions. It was time to get out, the couple said. “We don’t miss Sioux Falls at all.”

Audrey has ties to Flandreau, her grandmother Lottie Good Thunder is from the area. Bones adds that the couple also has a lot of friends here who are like family. So this was where they decided to land.

“We’re just happy to be here. We just feel good here, we like the people, like the town,” the couple said.

Skin and Bones Tattoo, which is now located in downtown Flandreau at 105 N. Wind Street, does take walk-in appointments. They prefer, however, that customers make an appointment if possible. They are open five days a week from 10am - 6pm Tuesday through Saturday.

2022 Junior Miss Rodeo Aberdeen

“Kyler Foreman, 13 year old daughter of Travis & Cassandra Foreman. Granddaughter of the late David Herrick and great granddaughter of Darlene Allen Herrick. Kyler was crowned the 2022 Junior Miss Rodeo Aberdeen on Sunday August 14th. She competed in horsemanship, modeling, speech, interview and impromptu questions. She will be competing for Teen Miss Rodeo South Dakota in Brookings in November. Kyler goes to school in the Miller SD area.”

Kyler may be coming to the Flandreau Rodeo and carrying the flags! She will be looking for sponsors, maybe Royal River Casino or Tribe, or Allen Construction Co. Inc.
